These types are part of the response body variable from listing 5.8. The `id` is given the `RandomInt` type, which generates a random integer for the contract in the correct format. Next is `matchingRules`, which come from the same methods. Returning matchers are used as part of the provider tests to match types against provider data types.