

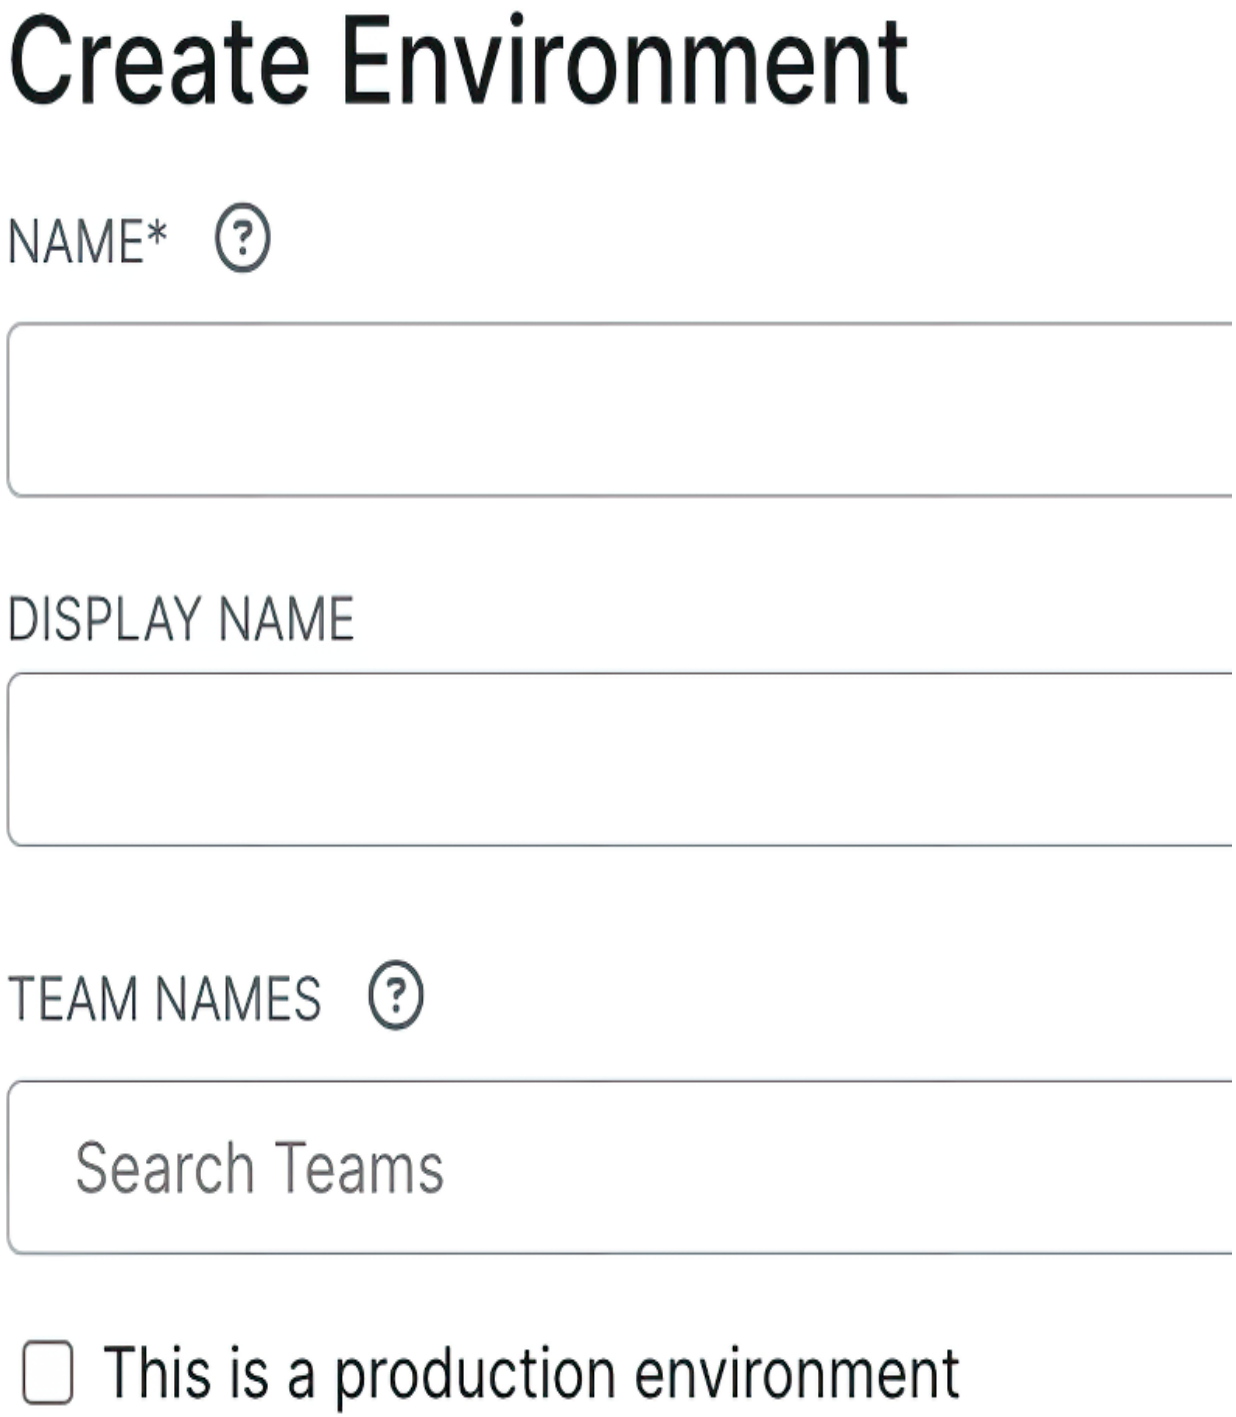

Figure 10.9 Create Environment screen from PactFlow where a new environment can be added

Now that we have versions, branches, and environments configured, let's say that your team has deployed the current version to a production environment. How do we record that this version is the one being used by our users? Let's look at how to record deployments and releases with Pact.