

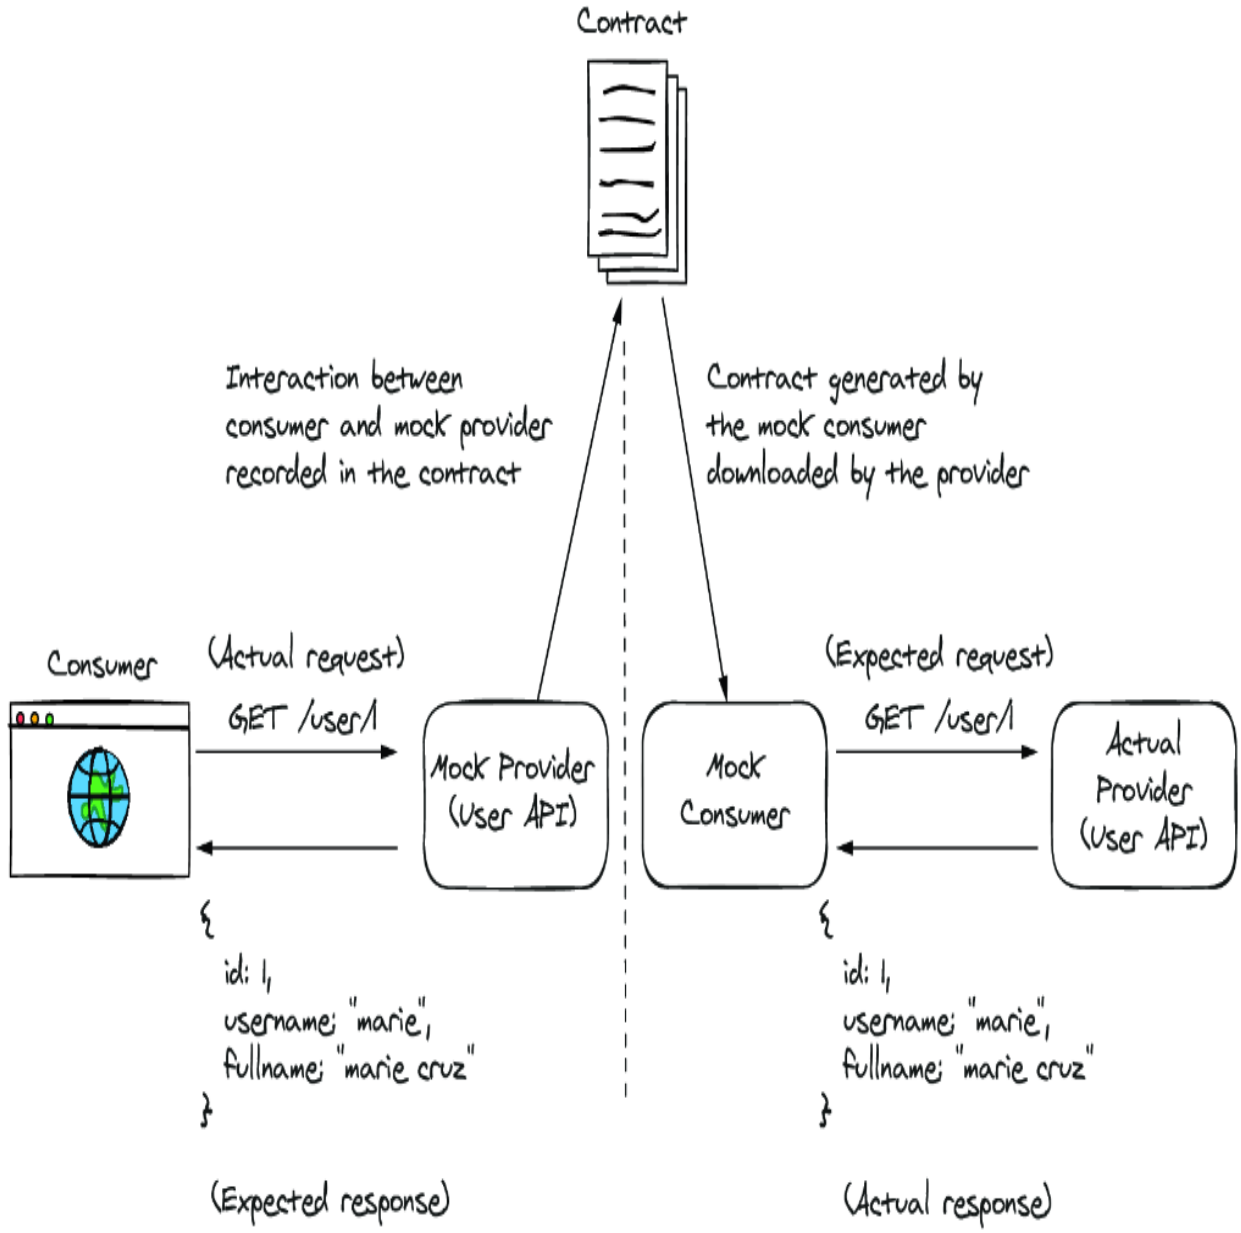

Figure 2.11 The contract testing process between a consumer and a provider

The illustration highlights how the interaction between a consumer and a provider is verified safely and reliably via a shared contract instead of needing to communicate with one another. This shows why contract testing offers the same faster execution as unit testing.