

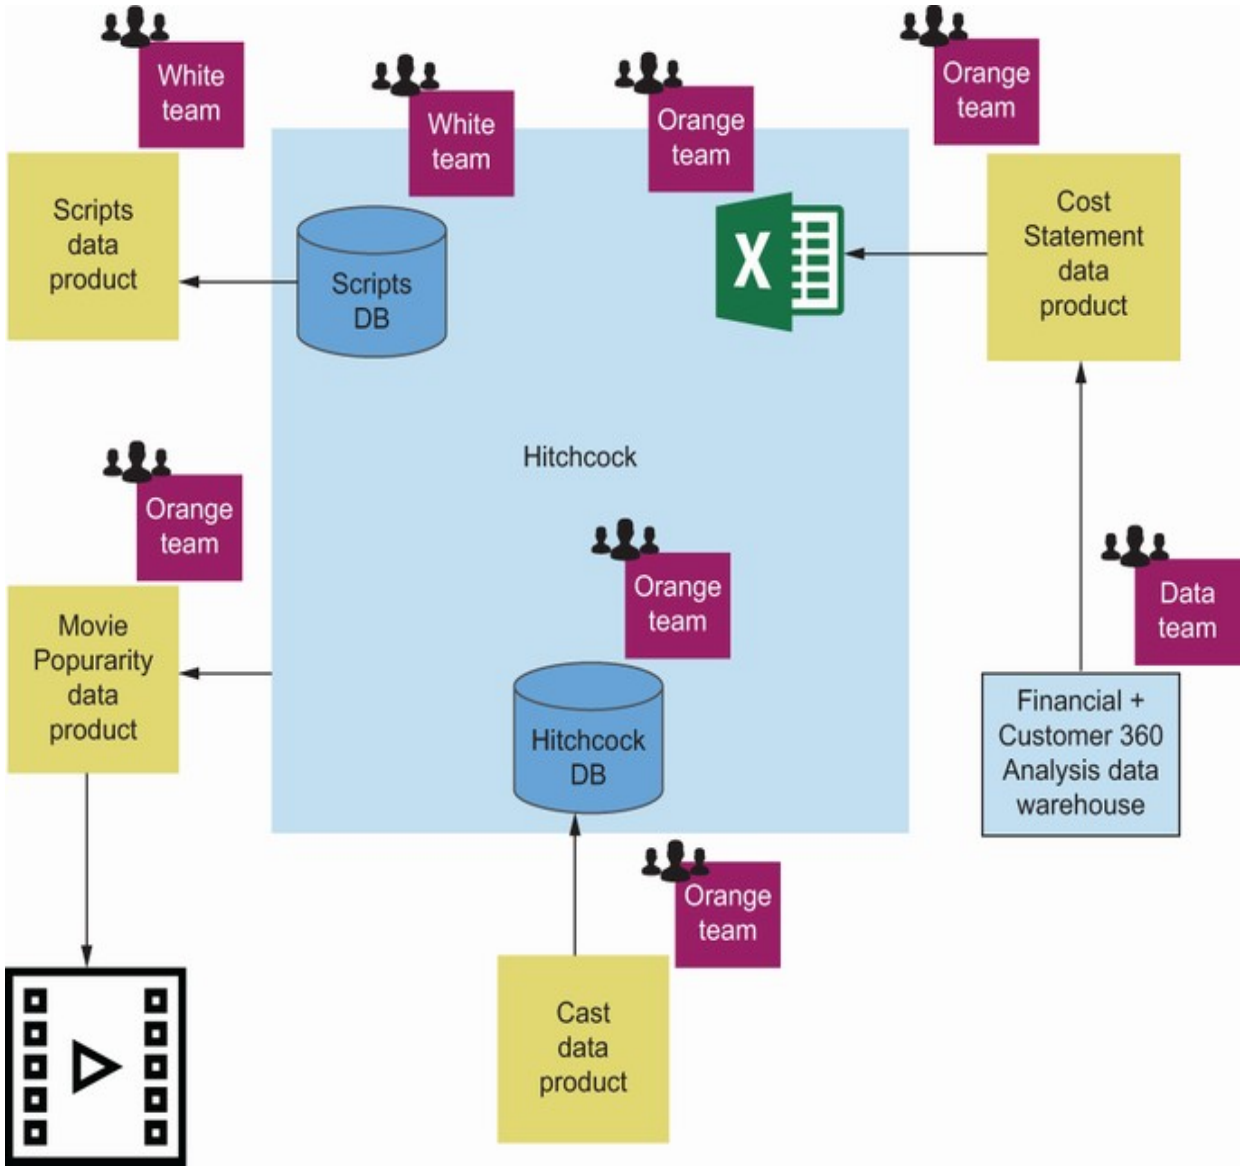

Figure 4.13 Newly established data products in Hitchcock Movie Maker and the teams with the data products' ownership

Movie Popularity is an example of an external dataset that an organization is paying for. Making a data product out of it brings a couple of benefits to the company:

- Optimizing the cost of data consumption (payment for single access)
- Ensuring data accessibility for other departments