

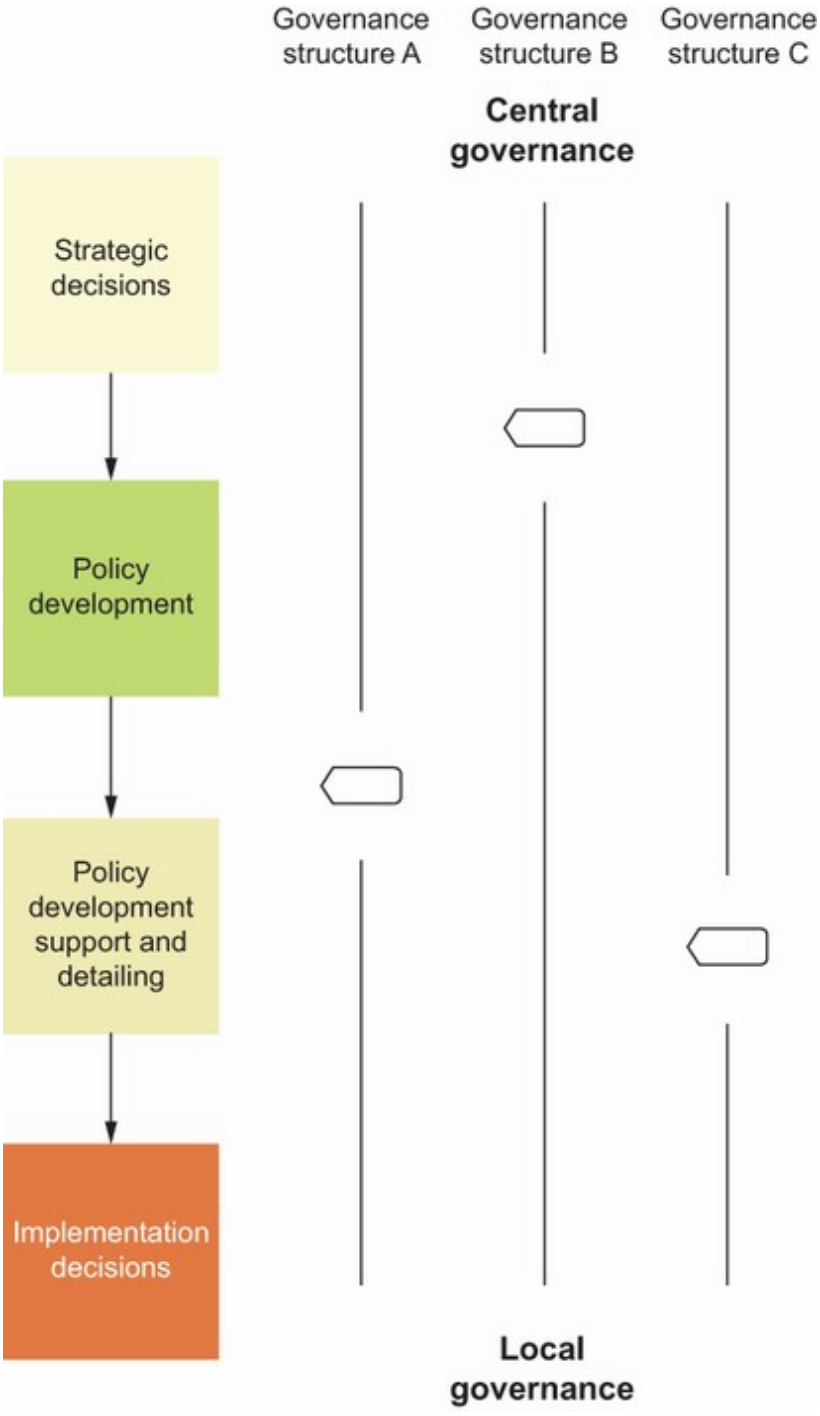

Figure 6.4 Various governance structures, with responsibilities split at different points within the data governance layers

Are your data product owners capable of defining nonfunctional requirements for policies? Let them do it. Would they prefer to get them from upstairs, trusting that the data governance team will consider the view