To the strong women who have come before me, for their sacrifices and for exemplifying the power of determination. To the memory of my grandmother, Hazel Adolph, for being my best friend and cheerleader.

– Stephanie Rivera

To females who pursued a STEM career and did not give up no matter what obstacles occurred on their way. Some would say science it's not for girls, well, prove them wrong.

- Anastasia Prokaieva

To my mother, Mary Baker. Thank you for showing me what true strength is, for being both a voice of reason and unbridled support, and for believing in me no matter what.

– Amanda Baker

This is dedicated to the women who inspired me to lead by example, to my mom, Susan Charba, who reminded me that I could be the one who inspires, and to the women still working their way up. I'll send the elevator back down. There is plenty of room for us all.
